Understanding the Policy & Procedure

While Chickasaw is a full-service telecommunications service provider, we are not a web site development or management company. We offer web hosting primarily as a courtesy to our customers. As such, we require that you understand and acknowledge the following terms and conditions of this service offering. If you do not understand these terms, consult your web developer or a trusted information technology expert.

- I understand that if I am transferring an existing web site that I am responsible for having a complete and intact copy of my content, and that I am responsible for transferring it to the BrightNet/CTSI Server.
- I understand that hosting does not include training on using programs such as FrontPage, or utilities such as FTP.
- I understand that CTSI's web hosting server does not permit any type of CGI, including bash, perl, or PHP.
- I understand that CTSI's "FrontPage Extensions" server is a Solaris Apache web server running the FP2000 extensions, not a Microsoft Internet Information Server.
- I understand I will be responsible for creating and deleting e-mail accounts and changing user passwords, through a provided web interface.
